About the Presenter: A Professor Emeritus of Medicine at the University of Arizona College of Medicine – Tucson, Dr. Stuart Quan previously was Pulmonary division chief and Sleep Disorders Center director. In addition, he’s a senior physician in the Division of Sleep and Circadian Disorders at Brigham and Women’s Hospital and the Gerald E. McGinnis Professor of Sleep Medicine at Harvard Medical School. Dr. Quan was founding editor-in-chief of the Journal of Clinical Sleep Medicine and the initial recipient of an editorial excellence award named in his honor there. He has served as the president of the American Academy of Sleep Medicine, board director of the American Board of Sleep Medicine, member of the Residency Review Committee for Internal Medicine of the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education, and chair of the Sleep Medicine exam committee for the American Board of Internal Medicine. He’s the recipient of the Nathaniel Kleitman Distinguished Service and William C. Dement Academic Achievement Awards, both conferred by the AASM. His current research activities, including as a member of the UArizona Health Sciences Center for Sleep, Circadian and Neuroscience Research, focus on the epidemiology of sleep and sleep disorders, particularly sleep disordered breathing, and providing healthy sleep education for the general public. Dr. Quan has written over 400 publications in scientific journals and books and authored a number of educational products for the general public.
