About the Presenter: Dr. Eric Widera is a professor of medicine and clinician-educator in the Division of Geriatrics at the University of California, San Francisco. His main goal is to improve care provided to elderly patients with severe chronic and/or terminal conditions through program development and educational innovations. He’s the director of the Hospice & Palliative Care Service at the San Francisco VA Medical Center, a past board of directors member for the American Academy of Hospice and Palliative Medicine, and president of the Association of Directors of Geriatrics Academic Programs. Dr. Widera has been the recipient of numerous grants and awards including the Hastings Center Cunniff-Dixon Physician Award, AAHPM Hospice and Palliative Medicine Leaders Under 40 Award, and the AAHPM Project on Death in America Palliative Medicine National Leadership Award. He’s also a co-founder of GeriPal, a Geriatrics and Palliative Care blog and podcast, as well as ePrognosis, an online set of prognostic calculators for the elderly.
