

Carcinoid and Neuroendocrine Disorders

July 17th 2016

11:00 – 2:00pm

University of Arizona Cancer Center – North

3838 N Campbell Ave, Tucson, AZ 85719

Reservations: <http://azcnf.org/> or 520-762-6757

Arizona Carcinoid and Neuroendocrine Foundation
<http://azcnf.org/> in conjunction with the University of Arizona Cancer Center would like to invite you to a presentation on Carcinoid and Neuroendocrine Cancer

Yi-Zarn Wang, M.D., D.D.S., F.A.C.S. is a Professor of Surgery at Louisiana State University Health Sciences College School of Medicine. He is a member of the multidisciplinary team at the Ochsner Neuroendocrine Tumor Program in Kenner, Louisiana. His clinical interests include hepatobiliary, pancreatic surgery, radiofrequency and Nanoknife ablation of solid tumors. Dr. Wang received his dental training in Taiwan. He entered the graduate program in oral/general pathology at OHSU in Portland, Oregon where he obtained his medical degree. He went to the Barnes Hospital/ Washington University Surgical Residency Program in St. Louis, Missouri where he received world-class surgical oncology discipline under numerous renowned surgeons. He joined the faculty at LSUHSC in New Orleans in 1994. Before Hurricane Katrina, he served as Chief of General Surgery and Director of Surgical Education and ran the surgical cancer care for indigent patients in Louisiana.

Marian Porubsky, MD is an Assistant Professor of Surgery at Banner University Medical Center. He received his M.D. from Komensky University Bratislava, Slovakia. He completed residencies in the Department of Surgery, University Hospital Bratislava, Slovakia; Department of General and Transplantation Surgery, University Hospital Essen, Germany; and Department of General Surgery, University of Illinois at Chicago.

Michelle Bratton R.D Certified Specialist in Oncology will present on nutritional aspects of disease and treatments.

THE UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA
Cancer Center

